This map makes no sense, at least from a perspective of fair representation. The argument that having rural + SLC in the Southern Utah district will pressure a Congressperson to listen to the whole district is BS. Their attention will go where the votes are - in this case, SLC. At best, Southern Utah becomes a secondary consideration; at worst, our voice is completely shut out and we lose representation. Is succession an option at the state level?????

In general, I really like how this keeps the northern half of Salt Lake County together, extending eastward to Park City, and I tend to agree with Bauer that urban/rural mixes divide loyalties (as a Tooele citizen, don't get me started on how well our interests have been represented by the four different non-Tooele state senators who currently "represent" us), but I know my fellow Tooeleans wouldn't support being lumped in with "all the rest." While our county is geographically both urban and rural, population-wise we are less rural and, regardless of political persuasion, most of us feel we have more in common with NW Salt Lake County (Magna, WVC).
