Hello again,

I have attached all the comments from the RedistrictUtah.com website into the Excel document. As always, you can sort by the post, author, etc.

For easier readability, I have marked the Base Maps in blue, and the 6 Congressional finalist maps in pink, so you can briefly look through them before tomorrow's meeting.

Let me know if you have any questions.

P.S. I apologize for sending out so many eMails about this, but I spoke to the organizer of the Hinckley Forums, and she and I worked out some dates and times. Now I have a better idea on what times could work, and we can choose which would work best for those interested in attending. The dates/times are:

(All in October)-

Monday, the 17th at 2 or 3.
Tuesday, the 18th at noon.
Wednesday, the 19th at 10:45.
Thursday, the 20th, at 12:15.
Monday, the 24th, can choose whichever time.

Thanks,

Spencer Nitz

Brad, it's not intentional...I'm sure it could use some improvements. It's an open map. Feel free to tweak it as you see fit. This map seems to split cities and neighborhoods.

Putting parts of Tooele with Box Elder? Wouldn't it make more sense to place Tooele with western SLCo and Box Elder? I understand that cities and towns don't want to be split up and that's probably difficult to keep them together. What a rip off. You carved up nearly every large city and combined most of them with a rural area in an adjacent county. This map still does not address the issue that the western parts of West Valley and Magna are still being placed in the same district, some people aren't even being counted, that makes no sense and we are not equal. Yes, that's what I said, and my job is to do a great job. Eric, this map is much better than the base map proposed by Senator Okerlund. Hopefully the commission will take it into consideration. It looks like this has Taylorsville split between 4 or 5 representatives. How is that minimizing splitting up cities? While the numbers are impressive, at what cost? The Nephi/Manti district is an amazingly shaped district and it should be kept together. Please DO NOT divide Tooele County and combine it with a Box Elder County senate district. Tooele County has a long history and as a resident of West Valley, I don't like the idea of the city being divided up between 5 different districts. On the other hand, I am disappointed with this map. While trying to give the appearance of keeping most of Tooele County together, it seems to me they are finally identifying Tooele County as the country's dumping ground. People who live there are being treated as second-class citizens. A pretty good map. Much better than most of the maps I have seen. I like that you haven't divided up Tooele County. [...] This plan is an update of the "Okerlund Draft Base Plan" and will be presented at the September 7, 2011 Redistricting Commission meeting. Being from Utah County I have to say that you did a good job with the 3rd.

It is not bad, except for the fact that St. George and Brigham City are in the same district.

This is not a bad map and I think most of your ideas will be used (I hope)

I have to agree with VIGGOE and Urubu715. This map does not respect cities or areas of interest.

Pleasant Grove and Alpine do not have anything in common with Park City and the Avenues.

I like it! I-15 is a very logical divide for Salt Lake County.

As a moderate republican, I'm all for gerrymandering for Mattheson! He represents my worldview (and that's why I don't see how it helps the "religious divide" to make neat and tidy enclaves for each group. Wouldn't it make more sense to have a district that represents the majority of the population? We appreciate the hard work that has gone into the various redistricting plans. As the Mayor of Grantsville City, I think this is an accurate representation of interests in Utah. I would think rural Utah would welcome not getting split up. Utah County is messy on this map - Lehi/SS/AF particularly. I would prefer to see less communities split up between districts. This map is unacceptable! There are differing opinions about who Tooele County should be lumped in with, but I strongly object as a state and county delegate from Tooele to see our county sliced up into 3 districts so that we are treated as second-class citizens. This map is obviously drawn to protect incumbents, specifically Sen. Knudsen. It violates all the principles of fair redistricting. What we're looking for in a state school board map is preservation of local school district boundaries, to the extent possible. Looking at the map (Okerlund Draft Base Plan) on the Redistrict Utah site for the senate seats, I'm extremely disappointed. The plan was posted to the "everyone" folder yesterday. It is called "Senate - Okerlund Draft Base - 09/02/11." Redistricting should never be done with a consideration to what is best for any politician, nor what is best for a particular group. This is excellent.

Tooele County by the 2010 Census has 60,000 people. It would still need 35,000 citizens adjacent to it to get a representative in the legislature. This is what happens when your county only has one legislator based in your county. When the state wakes up to this, it will be too late. I really like this map! It keeps communities together.

I have created a map "Tooele Senate Divided" that is public for "everyone" that just has Tooele County and has a representative in the legislature. Dear Redistricting Committee, please allow the population of Salt Lake County and Salt Lake City to dictate a new map. I must say, I've not been an elected official as long as some, certainly not as long as Sen. Okerlund, so I don't want to dictate a new map. Dear Redistricting Committee, please allow the population of Utah County to dictate a new Congressional District. Is there a copy of this map on the "everyone" section of the public software? I didn't find it yet. Thanks!

What part of "I live in Tooele City and don't want to be lumped in with Box Elder County" didn't make sense. (

I would like to see all of Salt Lake City in one district. Also, you could shift your west side boundaries so West Valley, West Jordan, and Orem are in one district. Why are Salt Lake City, West Valley, West Jordan, and Orem divided between two or more districts? Each of them is. Why is Salt Lake City divided between 4 different districts? Salt Lake City itself should be one district. Then you have West Valley split between 4 different districts, West Jordan split between 3 and Taylorsville split between 2. This map splits almost every community in Tooele County. As small as Grantsville is it even split into one small subdivision. I like that in my current/future senate district, communities were largely kept whole: American Fork, Pleasant View, etc. I like it.

[...] requests public input on this plan. This plan or a similar version will be presented at the September 7, 2011 meeting. [...] One of the maps selected by the committee was actually proposed through the website by Robert Horning. This map divides nearly every community on the west side of Salt Lake County between two districts, and in fact it is a bad proposal. Put all of Ogden, Rich and the rest of Cache county back into the northern district, put North Salt Lake City in its own district. You have a load of oddly shaped districts across your map. Logan is divided between three districts? Many other communities are split. It divides too many communities on the West side of Salt Lake County between districts.

Why would you divide Salt Lake City between three different districts, one based in Tooele county, and one based in Salt Lake City? Personally, I like this plan the best. I think it is the most balanced, gives everyone a voice, and, it cuts me off from Sanpeteman, let's keep in mind here that urban and rural areas being divided actually allows for both interests. Your stated goal is not achieved. It divides every community along the West side of Salt Lake County between two districts. I like it, but I don't believe rural residents will accept a centralized urban district.

Nice idea, but the boundaries should follow city lines, not just divide down the middle. Plus rural residents will be in a district with no rural areas. Nice map, except for Salt Lake County. Keep Salt Lake City, West Valley, and South Salt Lake City intact with their own districts. Why do so many urban centers (West Valley, West Jordan, Taylorsville, Provo, and Orem, Midvale, Sandy, Layton, etc.) have to be split? [...] The governor has called a special session of the Legislature to address redistricting and to vote on proposed changes. The urban/dense suburban populations dominate the 21st. Hey 21st. Calm down. Have a nice cup of Chamomile Tea, put your feet up and relax. I've intended no insult. Sure. What's fair is fair, 21st. As for me and a lot of other Utahns, we'll take the Koch brothers over Soros, Sen. Hatch. I agree with this map. Especially like the rural districts. Like keeping Tooele County whole on this one.

Hey, you still owe me an apology for stating in one of your prior posts that I was playing "fast and loose" with you. This is a worthy request. However, if they don't divide some communities we will end up with unequally populated districts. Hey if you mention Soros, do I get to mention the Koch brothers, or is that just empty angry rhetoric that distracts from the real issue? Maybe you have a point. However, the urban areas would elect people from their areas; those in outlying areas would elect people from their areas. 21st, The Republican Party purchased such software this census cycle and does a political analysis of submitted maps. Your assertion, 21st, that only three percent of people attending the RD meetings favored the 'pizza' plans is a distortion of the facts. You've got it wrong, Brent. By including a representative rural population component in each district means that the map is a very well thought out, workable map.

Love it...and yes please maintain the boundaries set forth for Tooele.

One of my favorite plans. It gives a great mix of urban and rural. None of the districts is so geographically large as the 21st. I like this type of plan with the three southern vertical districts and one northern district. I appreciate the urban areas being kept whole. I really like this plan. I like the "hat and three stripes" concept. I think it provides for a balance between urban and rural.

It is a difficult task getting the populations right and respecting seated congressmen. Thank you Steve, not bad. My only objection is that you have carved off 20% of Sanpete County (Gunnison Valley) into a separate district. It's about time someone came up with a plan that makes as much sense as the one Gene Davis has submitted. Sanpete...the MAJORITY as in those of us who live along the Wasatch front from Ogden to Provo. That the Wasatch front is a representative district accurately described as 'protectionist'? I think a better word would be 'compact'. Adam, may I respectfully ask how in the world you describe this map as 'compact' when 80% of the state, all rural, is in the 'donut hole' again, though not as bad as the first one. I still like your first map though. Daniel, While I liked your other plan I cannot say the same for this one. The 'donut hole' is a supremely bad idea. Daniel, Good map. It looks remarkable similar to mine take a look. Steve Clark

Sanpete...oh please, you are sounding like the protectionist mouthpiece of the GOP in Utah. How is a district that is 80% rural a 'compact' district? Giant, Thanks for your thoughtful comment. Here is my respectful reply. There are many good reasons for districting Sanpete County as a separate district, since no one seems to be able to comment here without your input, may I ask you, why do you think that? What does telephone area code have to do with congressional representation? This plan is concise although it is not perfect. Excellent plan

Are you saying that Beaver and Sandy or the Avenues have more in common than Beaver and Price?

Yes! This is what I want. I don't think the rural/urban combination provides decent representation for either side. The last consideration should be where current Senators live. Let the chips fall where they may. The districts should be based on population. Here is a blast from the past. This reminds me of when we had two Congressional Districts Splitting North and South. This is not bad but still does not address the problem of a state with two population centers. One that may be better than the other. Are you FREAKING NUTS?! This kind of division would rip the state apart. Look at the problem we are having with the Salt Lake City area. I don't think so. 1. Doughnut hole districts in Rural states like Utah make for confusion on why represents who lives there. I wonder why the Salt Lake City Politicos seem to think that they need representation all to their own. Well For the Salt Lake City area, you have more in common with that rancher from Blanding than you probably understand. You should expand your horizons. Perhaps you should expand your horizons. That guy from Cedar City or Monticello is your fellow citizen. To the Salt Lake City area. Best approach...but it will never fly, it makes too much sense.

I concur with Sanfran...this is just a bad GOP joke, but I didn't expect much else from Utah. As one who lives on the west side, I have submitted three maps for the state board of education over the past two weeks, but none are ever posted. This is the best proposal so far.

Joni, All of the user submitted plans in the online redistricting tool will be posted on redistrictutah.com under the name of the user. David, I posted this same comment under the "Sumsion Utah County House Plan" post. You can use submitted maps by other users as a template by opening the desired plan in the "Shared Plans" section. I think Rep. Davis has done an excellent job keeping people with similar needs together.

David, You can use submitted maps by other users as a template by opening the desired plan in the "Shared Plans" section. Gerrymandering ensures a result where the total number of elected representatives is disproportionate to the population. Are you kidding me! As a native to Salt Lake City this map is a joke! A joke! I have nothing in common with a guy from Cedar City. Thanks David

I am unable to find any of the 27 citizen plans you state have been posted. Can you make it easier to find them? Hmmm. Not bad.

I think that Beaver and Price probably have more in common than Beaver and Salt Lake, or Moab and Ogden. I like your Utah County plan, because, at least on the populated east side, it keeps like communities together.

It would be helpful if we could take an already submitted map and work from it instead of redrawing the whole thing. Is there a way on drawing districts to start from a map already submitted? I really don't want to redraw the whole thing. A good basic plan. I would shift the core a little for more community continuity and cohesiveness.

This one is Highly Impractical. There is no way that the issues of Price are the same as Beaver or Moab.

This plan has merit. Aside from making the rural congressman travel a bit, it provides good community continuity. This plan still puts rural Utah into the hands of Salt Lake county electorate.

This plan still puts southern Utah in the hands of Salt Lake County Electorate.

With this Plan Southern Utah is still at the mercy of Salt Lake and Utah County's electorate.

[...] Davis will present the following plan at the Moab public meeting on July [...]

I would also suggest that it is time to renumber the districts top to bottom as they were in the 1980's and 1990's. If I read the proposal map correctly, District 59 would cover parts of Lehi, American Fork, Pleasant Grove, Lindbergh, and Thanks, Chris. I finally got it to work by using Safari instead of Firefox, then doing a "Save as..." with a right click. Districts need to be contiguous and they are more rural than Salt Lake City or Provo.

David, Try opening the pdf in a new window, new tab, or right clicking and choosing "Save Link As..." or "Save Target As...". I find much to like about this proposal. I do feel a bit dubious, though, about grouping together different areas. I developed this proposal by starting with Utah's current state school board districts, relocating none (but renumbering), and then adjusting. I submitted this proposal a bit prematurely; please examine my other plans, instead.

I submitted this proposal a bit prematurely; please examine my other plans, instead.

I think that this proposal divides Utah County and southern Utah much better, overall, than my prior one (version 1). I developed this proposal by starting with Utah's current senatorial districts, relocating none, and then adjusting. None of the pdf downloads will download. They just leave a blank screen. Why could these not be shown like they should be? Nothing comes up for the pdf.

I developed this proposal by starting with one horizontal stripe each for Logan/Ogden (CD1), Salt Lake City (CD2), and Provo (CD3). Access isn't the most important factor, but significant difficulty getting to all areas of a district would likely impact its viability. I think that this is my favorite of the committee's lettered plans so far (A-H). Well done!

I find much to like about this map. If you're going to connect some of Utah County with Salt Lake County, though, I find much to like about this proposal's urban districts, but I feel a bit confused about its rural ones, especially the ones in the south. I find so much to like about this map. My only notable confusion is about why northwestern Utah is divided as it is. I like it in general. My only significant concern is why Grantsville (in Tooele County) remains in the same district as the rest of the county.

I don't understand why you combined Duchesne County with Summit County rather than Wasatch County, nor why you combined Uintah County with Carbon County. I note that this proposal's rural districts aren't as well-connected internally by transportation routes as they could be. I agree that "accessibility" is important. I've seen several districts, both current and proposed, that bring together areas that are not well-connected. Whenever you ask politicians to refuse to act in their own self-interest, they'll likely disappoint you. But it's good to see someone who is willing to do so.

As for myself, I recreated all four of Utah's U.S. Congressional districts from scratch. As for Utah's state-level districts, I'm pretty sure that each Utah county (of 29 total) used to elect a single state senator, but this was ruled to be unconstitutional. I've felt very pleased, overall, with this software. I learned to use it very easily. I've noticed very few glitches and I like this idea and, so, I tried to give St. George its own district in my proposals, but southern Utah isn't sufficient to support a district. Definitely!

As for myself, I think that this plan's Nephi-Wendover-Tooele-Lehi-Provo district could hardly make it. Rules require all districts to serve roughly-equal populations, which sometimes necessitates splitting counties. I can understand grouping Magna with western Salt Lake City, along with parts of West Valley City and Kearns, but I don't understand why you combined Duchesne County with Summit County rather than Wasatch County, nor why you combined Uintah County with Carbon County. Under present rules, each of Utah's state senatorial districts must include very close to 36,852 people---and it's difficult to find a group of that size that is both contiguous and reasonably compact.

Moab may not have much in common with Mapleton---but, if Moab's district didn't include Mapleton, then it would be difficult to find a group of that size that is both contiguous and reasonably compact. I agree. Rules require districts to be almost-equally-populated, and allow only a small percentage of variation, but I'm curious why committee members, in creating their respective proposals, generally seem to work outward from the center rather than inward. It seems that these committee members are not following procedure #5 as well as they could, whether for better or for ill.

Perhaps principle #6 should read as follows, instead: "Districts will be contiguous and reasonably compact and reasonably equal in population." The doughnut hole plan is the most sensible one so far. This isn't it!

I found everyone's comments very interesting. Many people desired the redistricting committee to be "independent". I updated some of my plan's names, as well as their descriptions. I submitted two proposals prematurely and I'm sorry. So Logan and St. George are rural!

I submitted a subsequent revision of this proposal (version B) that I believe divides both Utah County and southern Utah County. Thank you very much for bringing these problems to my attention. If I submit a revision of this proposal, please let me know. Latest software problem. When I click on the 'find unassigned geographies' button after the program search, it says 'prepping, so why don't you? Check out our fun redistricting tool, and submit your own map to the Committee.' I developed this proposal by starting with one horizontal stripe each for Logan/Ogden (CD1), Salt Lake City (CD2), and Provo/Orem (CD3). Thank you for posting so many submissions this week, including mine!

Rep. McCliff is a good and honorable man whom I greatly respect and who has family roots in Sanpete County. With all due respect to Rep. Sumsion, your plans "A" and "B" are highly problematic to Sanpete County. Our current plan is problematic in that it places Sanpete County and Carbon County in the same district. These two counties are not well represented. I like this one the best so far. Urban SL Co is represented well, Ogden and Provo get a seat as a district, and the layout would represent Utah well. The only change I would suggest is don't put part of Cache County into the same district as Sanpete County. This plan has a lot going for it. I hope it will receive wide support.

Can you define what views an "extremist Rep." will stand for? I often hear the word "extreme" used to define "extremist". Good and fair, with more compactness keeping neighbors with neighbors as much as possible. And it avoids the "extremist" problem.

Fair, but, like Sswannus said, a really big area for the Blue Rep. If they can do it in Wyoming and Montana, so can we. The "Cox Plan 1" for the house gerrymanders Representative Sandstrom into Val Peterson's district. I would appreciate your input.

Excellent plan!

In my never-humble opinion, Nathan Rasmussen's proposal <http://www.redistrictutah.com/maps/congress-rasmussen> is the best. I have no problem with religious individuals so long as they do NOT use their religion as an excuse to hurt others. Yes! Finally, someone understands "communities of interest."

Heaven help the poor Rep. that has to cover the Blue district.

Making informed and intelligent Comments: I encourage everyone to use the tool and try to make a map. Even if it's not perfect. I attended the Tooele redistricting meeting last night. I appreciate the committee's taking the time to meet with us.

This plan has merit. It has good community continuity. Though the total span of the largest district should be divided into two. Another total lack of concern for the differences of issues in the Urban and rural communities. Please don't keep the same district for both. This is worse than what we currently have. A very bad gerrymandering of urban and rural centers.

Too much discontinuity of community and issue focus between urban and rural areas. Although it is a nice layout.

Hello, I created a map this last week and submitted it "Crane Rural County Representation" or something like that. All I want is for Westpoint Community to be back in District 23, not District 20. We love Becky Edwards, but there are no northern Utah maps for the house yet?

When you're zoomed out, that district with Delta and Tooele seems to make sense. But then you zoom in, and I like this plan, but it would need to include more of South Salt Lake County and less North East Salt Lake County. Way too much territory to cover for one human being.

[...] the public hearings this weekend Representative Summison shared a proposal for Utah's four Congressional Districts. When will you be posting maps of the proposed house districts? If they are on here I can't find them.

This still splits up Salt Lake County, thus diluting a diverse voting group.

I think Uintah County could support this if it took in less of the eastern salt lake population. We have a lot of them. You have got to be kidding = Is the orange district person going to get a personal aircraft, car driver and life support? Creating congressional districts is difficult with the need for balanced population numbers. Another factor that I like this idea. I'm especially concerned that whatever is done is fair. I would like to take a look at the things the committee is talking about. I refer to the article in the Standard Examiner of June 6, 2001 concerning some redistricting plans by Rep. Froese. Read today's article in the Provo Daily Herald: http://www.heraldextra.com/news/opinion/article_eae22e5f-0 If you're going to go with a doughnut hole approach (rather than the pizza slices), Utah County is a more logical choice. Exactly. RD Committee - please pay attention to the voters that elected you. Not all of them are from Salt Lake. While the Sumsion plan is transparently an attempt to divide and conquer, I believe that a doughnut plan (the Wednesday June 22 in Provo? Where in Provo?)

Here is one "myth" supported by Senate Leader and Redistricting Committee Member (2001&2011) Waddoup. The software bid was due on April 15th. The demo software was first shown on May 4th. How could it possibly be ready? I agree - the 4 way split (pizza pie) does not offer any advantages to voters that I can see. So far community leaders support this plan.

Following Sumsion's logic and applying it to a scenario of redrawing the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives, the following meeting schedule is posted at RedistrictUtah.com; it will be updated as locations within the cities are determined. Great. We'll demo the new software tonight, at the public hearing in Layton, and should have it up and running by then. When is the software going to be available to the public. I would like to bring a suggestion to the statewide meeting. There is a lot that needs to be worked out, but I think most people would be willing to start over from scratch. Based on the number of desks on the House Floor, I think 75 is as many as we should have. If you took 75 divisions, I hope we can follow county and city lines where possible. In some cases, that won't work because of number of voters. Redistricting is a vital part of the legislative process.

Here are the number of cities that are split up by county. Weber County has 4, Davis County has 3. The donut hole isolates itself from any rural component, has only one county convention and one county seat. It makes no sense to combine Tooele and Box Elder Counties into the same district, as they have no connecting roads between urban and rural in each district. Still the actual balance of number of people per area is not perfect. "As that Price is a Rural City why split it?"

Why not split that carbon county as a whole tends to be moderate to liberal. This looks like an intentional attempt to protect incumbents.

It also seeks to isolate the state's body politic, but rather carves them up into isolated, protective enclaves who can ignore the composite of the state's body politic. In my opinion, every district should contain as close to a true representational cross-section of the state's body politic as possible. How does it make sense to simply hand the state over to the country folk? The political reality of such a configuration is that if you isolate all of us into one district you are creating a liberal enclave. Utah is a combination urban, suburban, rural state. With only four districts easily divided to contain all the Dems two seats in the redistricting process by creating two districts in which liberals have outsized representation. If the donut hole plan is not done in support of Matheson - period! This map represents the common interest of the republican party. I submit that rural areas would benefit by having a representative who can, and likely will represent and three donut hole districts, and mine which has district three starting in Alpine (UT. County, Rep. Charley) representing mining and conservative leaning populations. This is dangerously close to being a donut hole configuration. Is this a fair, balanced, reflective state demographic? This is just another discriminatory, artificial, non-representative configuration.

What is wrong with that? Don't you have a broad enough capacity to give respect to your fellow suburban and rural populations? Sandy is the only east side city that is split between two or more districts while all of the west side cities are in one. Weaver, Price and Moab? Do not all the citizens of the state deserve fair and equal treatment in accordance with the overall body politic of the State. Are they entitled to preferential treatment or discriminatory treatment?

on the liberal side. This is obviously a democrat plan concocted to hand them two seats in congress when the reality is that the state is dominated by rural populations. This donut hole is not representative of the geopolitical demographics of the state. Districts should, as far as possible, be a reflection of the political and geographical character of the state. However, you did a good job of mixing urban, suburban and rural populations.

creates a liberal enclave that is totally out of sync with the true geopolitical makeup of the state. The second plan is a cross-sectional geopolitical demographics of the state. Gary, Dems need to win elections with ideas and courage rather than having to compete against a true representative cross-section of Utah's actual body politic. It also isolates the state's body politic. I would be completely comfortable with either one.
